

Afghanistan's Agriculture Trade Fairs: Creating New Business Opportunities

Afghanistan's agricultural trade fairs (AgFairs) promote the country's high-value products ranging from pomegranates to cashmere and forge business relationships that capitalize on the nation's growing agricultural sector.

The AgFairs are at the vanguard of agricultural development and are recognized as the country's largest and most important trade fairs. The events provide national and international participants with the opportunity to facilitate business deals for agriculture products and equipment, learn more about investing in the agribusiness sector in Afghanistan, and showcase new agriculture technologies and services to one of the fastest growing markets in Central Asia.

The AgFairs have generated millions of dollars in business deals and have attracted buyers, sellers, farmers and investors from Afghanistan, the United States, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, India, Turkmenistan, Kazakhstan, Pakistan and the United Arab Emirates.

AgFairs are organized by Afghanistan's Ministry of Agriculture, Irrigation and Livestock (MAIL), the Afghanistan Chamber of Commerce and Industry (ACCI), the Afghanistan Investment Support Agency (AISA), the Export Promotion Agency of Afghanistan (EPAA) and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID).

KABUL Fresh Fruit & Vegetable INTERNATIONAL AGFAIR

May 20-22, 2009 ▪ Badam Bagh Fairgrounds ▪ Kabul, Afghanistan

Afghanistan, home to one of the fastest growing agricultural markets in Central Asia, is your silk road to business opportunities.

Come to the Kabul International Fresh Fruit and Vegetable AgFair, one of the largest and most important trade events in the country, and gain a competitive advantage in this lucrative emerging market.

The Kabul AgFair will showcase Afghanistan's fresh fruits and vegetables, including apricots, melons, grapes, apples, peaches, cauliflower, broccoli, carrots, tomatoes, among others. The country sits at the crossroads of Asia, primed to benefit from the booming consumer markets of India and China and set to expand exports to the Gulf, Europe and North America.

Afghanistan's agricultural fairs draw thousands of businesspeople from across the country and the world. With its abundance of fresh produce, Afghanistan is ripe for foreign investment in infrastructure improvements ranging from cold-chain management to import/export brokerage services as well as modern farming inputs spanning environmentally safe pesticides and the latest cultivation techniques.

The Kabul International Fresh Fruit and Vegetable AgFair allows you to:

- Network with hundreds of leading business representatives
- Participate in business-to-business match-making meetings
- Learn the latest technology in wheat cultivation at the AgFair's Productivity Center

- Exhibit your products and new technologies
- Explore profitable markets and business sectors
- Gain valuable information from policymakers and business leaders
- Forge business deals in the country's expanding agricultural sector

Afghanistan is your silk road to business opportunities!
